Primary abnormalities of the lymphatic vessels are rare. Disease in the lymph glands that interrupts the flow of lymph is common.

Lymphoedema:

Lymphoedema is the accumulation of lymph in the interstitial spaces as a consequence of defective lymphatic drainage.

The oedema fluid is rich in protein, in contrast to the oedema of heart and kidney failure, which has a low protein content.